I guess what I want to do is to have a function: fn some_fn(context: Rc) -> Result { with_context(context.clone()) { fn foo() {... } } } I'm not quite sure how to implement with_ like this. A: The easiest way is to use an explicit for loop: fn foo() { for item in some_list.iter() { ... } } This will not be as efficient as the iterator type macro, but it's usually easier to read. If you really want to avoid explicit looping, you could write an implementation of the with_context trait, though it's not recommended. Piezoelectric-driven microrobotic actuation of multiscale deformable hydrogel beads by contactless micromagnets. Micromagnetic solenoids are used for the contactless manipulation of the magnetic polar moment of the magnetic beads produced by magneto-motors that operate by piezoelectric-activated deformation of piezoelectric bimorphs. A short history of motion generation by means of magnetic field excitation is given, with
